A Romance in Melody

Once upon a time, "Long, Long Ago" near my "Old Kentucky Home", a handsome and dashing young man by the name of "Yankee Doodle" was visiting "The Old Folks at Home".

As he was "Coming Thru the Rye" he met "Annie Laurie" with the "Last Rose of Summer" in her hand. It was love at first sight, and, not being backward, the young man said, "How Can I Leave Thee?" If you will come with me, "There's a Long, Long Trail" to the place where we'll "Let the Rest of the World Go By".

She whispered "Sweet and Low", "If you will 'Carry Me Back to Old Virginny' to my 'Home, Sweet Home', I'll leave 'Dixie Land' for you".

So they were married at "The Church in the Wildwood" as "In the Evening by the Moonlight" the stars were beginning to shine.

And the last she saw of "The Dearest Spot on Earth" was "Old Black Joe" waving his bandanna, the tears streaming down his face.

Thus, with the music of "Love's Old Sweet Song" in their ears, they came to the end of a "Perfect Day".
